

The Man in Lower Ten – Mary Roberts Rinehart

The Man in Lower Ten

By Mary Roberts Rinehart (1876-1958)

Someone had to take the bank notes to Pittsburgh and take a statement from John Gilmore confirming that they were indeed forged. It was McKnight's turn to go, but he was bagging off because he wanted to spend the weekend visiting Alison West in Richmond. And so his law partner, Lawrence Blakeley, is left with no choice but to make the trip himself. All goes well at first, but on the train home, Blakeley wakes to find that the notes, along with his clothes, are missing from his sleeping berth. It was an eventful night. In addition to the theft, there's been a murder in the berth across, and when the weapon is found under Blakeley's pillow, he becomes one of the prime suspects. (Summary by MaryAnn)

Total running time: 6:15:38

Read by MaryAnn Spiegel

This recording is in the public domain and may be reproduced, distributed, or modified without permission. For more information or to volunteer, visit librivox.org.

Cover design by MaryAnn Spiegel
Cover picture by Howard Chandler Christy (1909)

The Man in Lower Ten – Mary Roberts Rinehart